STOLEN KISSES.

In silence and hush of a dream,
With never a sound to be heard,
But a touch of lips in the gleam
Of the fire, and never a word.
The echo will ever repeat,
Breaking the silence in twain;
"Stolen kisses are always sweet,
And love is never in vain!"

For a kiss would a maiden wake
From the charm of a dreamful sleep,
And a touch of true love would break
The peace that the blue eyes keep.
For ever the echo shall greet,
Like song of a ripening rain;
"Stolen kisses are always sweet,
And love is never in vain!"

When hearts and lips have grown cold,
And love lives but for an hour;
When life's romance has been told,
And kisses have lost their power,
Then shall soft memory fleet,
No more a dream to enchain.
Yet stolen kisses are always sweet,
And love is never in vain.

SELECT STORY.

MY LAST REHEARSAL.

Probably the theory of evolution never received a more practical illustration, physically and mentally, than in my case. For whereas I am now a portly, sedate, well-to-do father of a family, church warden, overseer and guardian of my parish, some thirty years ago I was a slender harum-scarum bachelor, impecunious, and ready at a moment's notice for any folly which might present itself to my excitable and mercurial temperament. Vicious I certainly was not, but merely thoughtless and inconsiderate. My name is Matthews, and I was christened Charles, after an uncle, from whom my father had pecuniary expectations. The late Charles Reid was undeniably right when he said that versatility never pays. I was a fair baritone single, a clever caricaturist, an admirable mimic and enjoyed great renown as an amateur actor. Yet at the age of 25 I was entirely dependent on my father for the necessaries of life and pocket money. My largest creditor at this time was my tailor, to whom I was indebted in the sum of ninety-five pounds, four shillings and sixpence. Unless my father "stumped up" I had as much chance of being able to pay the national debt as of defraying this amount. For some reason or other my father proved unusually obstinate at this juncture, and declined to do anything in the matter; I remember he described his conduct as firmness. I have omitted to mention that I was in love with a very pretty, but portionless young lady by the name of Walker. My father characterized this circumstance as another sample of my thoughtlessness and perversity, as my acquaintances were several young ladies with very tolerable fortunes. I had a quasi-rival for Miss Walker's good graces, of the name of Nobbe. He was very plain and unpleasant in his manners that I entertained no fears of being ousted by him, and accordingly we were very good friends. He employed the same tailor (Binks) as myself, and one memorable morning Mr. Nobbs came to me and told me that Binks had issued a writ against me for the amount of my debt. The law against debtors at that date was much more stringent than it is at present, and I determined to leave London and go into hiding for a time, until I could prevail on my wealthy uncle to relieve me of Binks' claim. I had a few pounds in my pocket, and informed Nobbs that I would start at once for a small watering place which I will here call "Seamouth." I had never been there, but had heard a good account of it from a friend who had found it cheap, quiet and salubrious. In an hour I had my modest portmanteau packed (which had my name duly inscribed on a brass plate thereon), and was steaming at the rate of thirty miles an hour for the nearest postal town to Seamouth. When I left the train I found there was a coach about to start for Seamouth, a distance of about eight miles. After an hour's drive I was deposited at the door of the "Red Lion." I was not much puzzled as to the choice of my hotel, for the "Red Lion" was the inn in the place. Seamouth consisted apparently of one long, straggling street, with a few detached houses on the outskirts. At a distance of a hundred yards the open sea tumbled and tossed on the shingly beach. In ten minutes I felt I had "done" Seamouth, and contemplated with some feelings of dismay a lengthened residence in this secluded spot. I had already secured a bed-room, left my portmanteau, and ordered a steak and accessories prior to my stroll round the place. As I crossed the entrance hall to the coffee room, I found myself the object of special observation by the staff of the hotel. The rubicund Boniface saluted me with a broad grin, the antiquated waiter smirked in a peculiar fashion as he hastened to open the door of the coffee room, while a housemaid on the stairs was evidently much more occupied in studying my personal appearance than sweeping the carpeted stairs. A half-length of what was evidently the cook peered from the regions below. I was about to seat myself at one of the tables when the host advanced, and with a very deferential bow begged that I would accept the offer of a private room. Anticipating my objection he went on to say that no extra expense would be incurred in consequence. So a few minutes saw me engaged in discussing a juicy tender steak, some mealy potatoes, flanked by a tankard of nut-brown ale, with an obsequious waiter as my sole attendant. I determined to write to my uncle immediately after dinner, as my slender purse would soon be exhausted in defraying the cost of my present luxury. As the waiter placed an apple tart on the table, he remarked, "I think this is your first visit to Seamouth, sir?" I replied in affirmative, muttering sotto voce, "and also my last; Seamouth appears to be a very sleepy kind of place. The old waiter drew himself up, apparently resenting this stigma on the little watering-place: "Very quiet, sir, but very select. But we shall be very lively now you have honored us with a visit, sir." I failed to perceive how the presence of a fugitive debtor could add to the cheerfulness of any place, but I made no reply, considering the compliment would be charged for in the bill. "It's hastonishing, sir, what a difference the theatre makes when it is hopen."

"Seamouth cannot support a theatre," I replied. "No, sir; honly when a star comes; I remember, when I was a boy, seeing Mr. Macready hact here; and people came far and near to see 'im. Our yard was full of traps of hevery description! and so it will be hon Thursday next, when Mr. Charles Mathews make his appearance." As he said this the old waiter made a profound genuflection and left the room. A light dawned upon me; my name was identical with that of the great comedian. The waiter had read the name on the brass plate on my trunk, and I had been mistaken for the coming man. I was chuckling over the singular error, and had resolved to disabuse the staff of the "Red Lion" accordingly, whose curious recention of me was now explained, when a circumstance occurred which caused me to change my resolution. The window of the room which I occupied commanded a view of the coach road leading to the nearest postal town.

As I reflected over the curious blunder, I found myself mechanically watching a dog-cart which was rapidly approaching the inn. It drew up at the door, and from the vehicle descended a stout, coarse-looking man, wearing a very bad hat, and very seedy in his habiliments in general. I was reading the advertisement in the Seamouth Express which announced the appearance of the London actor in his celebrated character of Sir Charles Coldstream in "Used Up," on Thursday next. This was one of my best impersonations as an amateur, and I had made such a close study of the original representative that I could reproduce every tone, and glance, and gesture. My personal appearance was also very similar. At this moment the waiter entered the room, holding his hands before his face, and apparently convulsed with laughter.

"I beg pardon, sir, but you will laugh as much as me when I tell you, sir. There is a Sheriff's officer in the coffee room, who wants to serve a writ on a Mr. Charles Mathews; he inquired if a gent of that name was here. I told him yes—the noter hactor. He guv a sigh, and said that was not the gent he wanted. He is going to stop here, as he knows for certain that his man is coming to Seamouth directly, and he will watch the arrivals by coach."

As the waiter delivered this exordium my mind was at work endeavoring to solve the mystery of my hiding place being discovered. "Nobbs"—that was the solution. On second thoughts he had disclosed the place of my retreat to Binks. As the waiter concluded, my determination was taken. My natural love for fun and adventure, combined with the instinct of self preservation, decided me to accept the honors thus suddenly thrust upon me. I made no reference to the waiter's story, treating it as too absurd for discussion.

"I want to send a note round to the lessee of the Theatre Royal."

"Certainly, sir. The boots can take it."

In a few seconds I had scribbled the following:

"Dear Simpson—to quote the Duke's motto—I am here. Will you call a rehearsal of 'Used Up' for to-morrow at 11? Yours faithfully, C. J. Mathews."

This characteristic note was promptly dispatched, and I waited in serenity and with a keen sense of approaching enjoyment at the result.

In half an hour the answer came.

"Dear Mr. Mathews, I am agreeably surprised by your early arrival, as I did not expect you till the morning of Thursday (the day of the performance). I suppose the papers are in error in advertising you as playing at Plymouth to-day, Tuesday. I shall be very pleased to make your acquaintance. Yours sincerely, T. Simpson."

Nothing can be more fortunate. Mr. Simpson had never seen the great comedian, and I was safe till Thursday. The reader may inquire, Why did I not make my escape from Seamouth while I had the opportunity? I can only reply that my love of adventure was responsible for my conduct. I should inflict no harm on any one; indeed I was conferring an actual benefit on the company of the Theatre Royal by affording them the great advantage of an extra rehearsal. And the actor himself would find his task on Thursday considerably smoother, as all my business was precisely the same as he would adopt.

Punctual to the hour appointed I made my appearance at the stage door at 11 on the following morning.

"Good morning, Mr. Mathews," ex claimed a little shabbily-dressed man, who was standing with his back to the fireplace in conversation with the Cerberus who guarded the sacred portal of the drama.

"Good morning, Mr. Simpson. Where is the company?"

"They are all on the stage, Mr. Mathews. I have got a pretty Mary for you, and a capital blacksmith."

I followed Mr. Simpson along a dimly lighted passage to the stage. As we threaded the gloomy labyrinth, my conductor whispered to me:

"You are satisfied with the terms I offered?"

"Perfectly, I answered. "Nothing could have been more liberal." (How I wondered what they were!)

"Yes, I think that arrangement is the fairest for both parties," continued the worthy manager.

I found a group of seedy-looking individuals on the stage, who were severally introduced to me. The impersonator of Mary Wurzel was a pretty-looking girl, but very pale and emaciated, while the representative of the blacksmith was a diminutive, but sturdy, little man.

"Hallo! this won't do; Ironbrace should be a big man, or where is the alarming contrast between Sir Charles in the deadly affray which takes place." The manager shrugged his shoulders.

"We can't get another now."

While they arranged the first scene I glanced round the theatre. It was a band-box of a house, and I should not have hesitated to play the piece in my own proper person had necessity compelled it. But when Thursday came I must be miles away! Here I suddenly remembered that the individual I was personating was renowned for his vivacity and stores of anecdote. So I drew on my memory, an uncommonly retentive one, and poured forth a stream of witticisms, which seemed to meet the circumstances of the case, for the company laughed immoderately, until at last the manager suggested a commencement of the rehearsal.

"We have heard of all your wonderful conversational powers, Mr. Matthews, and report has not exaggerated them, but suppose we—"

"Exacty, Mr. Simpson; business first and pleasure afterward."

I at once addressed myself to the business of the scenes, and really worked very hard in putting the company through their facings. It would not interest the general reader to mention in detail the very natural shortcomings of a scratch country company of strolling players. But I found them very docile and extremely anxious to follow my directions implicitly. Small as were my available resources, I expended half a sovereign in refreshment, and their countenances expressed their gratitude even more than their words. There was another piece down for rehearsal, "Married for Money;" but I was totally unacquainted with the piece, so I suggested it should be postponed till the morrow. Toward the conclusion of the rehearsal I observed Mr. Simpson examining my features with great earnestness.

"You wear uncommonly well, Mr. Mathews; I was told you were about 40 but you don't look more than five-and-twenty!"

"All habit, my dear, sir; I never encourage the idea of age. I follow the advice of Bulwer Lytton. Decide upon the age at which you choose to remain; and refuse to become any older. I have selected five-and-twenty. Perennial Jove, you know, and all that sort of thing."

My auditor was convinced; I continued:

"Besides youth is my stock in trade. How could I play the youthful Jemmy Jessamys if I looked my real age?"

My logic was unanswerable.

Ere we parted Mr. Simpson shook my hand heartily.

"A check on Friday morning, as soon as we have verified the receipts; I suppose that will do, Mr. Mathews?"

"Perfectly," I replied, cordially returning the pressure.

I was walking leisurely toward my hotel when I beheld a sight which almost turned my blood to water. Striding along in his usual brisk and jaunty fashion was the great comedian himself. He was evidently going to the theatre. Fortunately the building was closed, as I had seen Mr. Simpson lock the door and walk away with the key in his pocket. But Seamouth was a small place and the manager could soon be found. My course was plain. I must fly, and at once.

I met the waiter in the doorway. He grinned and pointed to a couple of trunks in the hall on which was inscribed, "Mr. Charles Mathews."

"He's come, sir."

"Where is the Sheriff's officer?" I inquired in as calm a tone as I could assume.

"He's gone for a walk on the beach. I sent boots after him. The gent has not come by the coach. He came in a fly. Pretty extravagance in a man as cant pay his owings. But it's just like that class."

"Please make out my bill, waiter," said I calmly, though I felt my heart thumping against my chest, as vulgar people say, nineteen to the dozen.

The waiter's countenance fell.

"Ain't you comfortable, sir?"

"Quite; your hotel is a perfect Elysium; but Mr. Simpson wishes me to stay with him till I leave Seamouth."

In five minutes I had paid my bill, and given the waiter a handsome douceur, and shouldering my portmanteau, was on my way to the theatre. The waiter expressed his regret that the boots was on the beach looking for the Sheriff's officer, and so unable to carry my portmanteau, and he himself was unable to leave the hotel, "all the spoons being about, you see, sir."

Nothing could be more fortunate for my purpose. As I strode away the horses were being harnessed for the departing coach, and as soon as possible I made my way to the road along which the coach must pass on its way to the postal town. I did not feel safe till I had mounted the box seat and had left Seamouth some miles behind. The coach was timed to meet the London train, and ere night fell I was once more under the paternal roof.

Here I found a letter from my uncle enclosing £100, and a nomination to a valuable government appointment. From that moment I turned over a new leaf, married Miss Walker, and forgave Nobbs (who protested his innocence as to my address). But as I considered conquerers can afford to be generous, I wrote a letter to the great comedian, explaining my conduct under very trying circumstances, and received a cordial letter of thanks in response for the very efficient rehearsal I had given the company of the Theatre Royal. The inconvenience to him from the Sheriff's officer was but of brief duration, my flight having sufficiently shown which was the real Simon Pure.

I have never paid a visit to Seamouth again.

Advice to Young Men.

The Metal Worker of a late date contains some excellent advice to young men. We give the following a place, believing that it can be read and digested by many with profit. The advice is sound, and, if followed, will surely lead to good. The writer says that if he had in his private office any one of perhaps a hundred young men with whom he had an acquaintance sufficiently intimate to warrant him in speaking plainly, he would close the door and say, in effect:

Now, my dear young friend, if you look about you in the trade you will see some things which will surprise you. There are now at the head of a number of important establishments young men, who, without capital or other influence than they had themselves created, have gone steadily and irresistibly from the bottom to the top. Luck? Not a bit of it, unless you count it their good luck to have been boys at a time when clerks did not think it worth their while to be scientific base ball pitchers or billiard experts, or to spend all their earnings in living better than young men should. Don't delude yourself into the belief that chances were better ten years ago than they are now. They never began to be as good as they are to-day. Now, let me give my remarks a personal application. You are of, say, a dozen young men in the line of promotion in the house which has generously retained you in its service during the past four years. During that time you have made an exceedingly small hole for yourself, and, had it been necessary during that time to reduce the force of clerks and salesman, you would have been among the most promising candidates for the grand bounce. Your safety has been that you averaged up pretty well with the rest of them and that you are a nice fellow. Let us look ahead a little. Things cannot continue as they are for many years. Sooner or later important changes must come. The man above you is Mr ——. Suppose his place was made vacant by any cause. Have you any reason except the exagerated egotism characteristic of youth to suppose that you would be preferred above others to take his place? If not, why should you loose any time in preparing yourself for the main chance? If you take a mental inventory of the clerks employed by your firm, you will see that if your success is dependent upon an intelligence and fidelity greater than their's it is easy of attainment. In three months of honest devotion of mind and body to the best interests of your employers you can do more for your temporal future than you now imagine possible. Suppose you begin with the first of the year to turn over a new leaf. Make a resolution that for twelve months you will devote yourself to business absolutely, and deny yourself every pleasure or indulgence which can in anyway interfere with your duties, however trifling they may seem. It makes really very little difference to you which nine holds the championship or which horse beats the record. Forget all about such things. If your time for reporting for duty is 8 o'clock, make it a rule to get there at a quarter to 8; and if you think anything worth while looking after is likely to be neglected by the porters, make it half-past seven. Something will happen within six months to make it pay you. If 6 o'clock is quitting time and anything remains undone, finishing it before leaving. See that the place is closed in good shape, and if you look sharp enough you will find a lot of things which ought to be seen to. If there is nothing doing, try and find something to do which is not specifically your business. Anything is better than standing around with your hands in your pockets, or comparing notes with the boys about things you would not like to have the boss overhear. When the rush comes be on top. You can stand a deal of hard work, and when you have to do it you will gain nothing by complaining of it. Be ready at all times to assume the duties of the man who gets more than you do, if he is sick or away. To do this you must in some way acquire a knowledge of his duties, which is easy enough if you set about it. If you have leisure and he is over-busy offer to assist him and you will get the chance you are after. Meanwhile improve your evenings. Supplement your somewhat deficient education by reading and study. Acquire a neat and rapid handwriting. Editors are the only people who can afford to write badly, because only the printers see their manuscript, and printers can read anything.

You want to know how to write a brief letter, which, without one unnecessary word shall contain the whole matter. Spelling, pronunciation and grammar should be faultless, and the handwriting should indicate character and decision. Despise copperplate and flourishes, and avoid labored eccentricities of style. Dress well, but avoid too much magnificence of jewelry, and be particularly modest in the matter of scarf pins. In a word, make up your mind that you are going to the top in spite of everybody and everything, and you will find that there is practically nothing which a young man like you cannot accomplish in ten years if he has a settled purpose and the strength of mind to stick to it. Above all, keep your own counsel. If you make confidants of your associates they will set you down for a prig. Besides, it is your own success you are after and not theirs. When the time for promotion comes, you want to be the only one thought of, and you can have it so just as easy as not. Now, one word about your habits. You had better make it a rule not to drink. It will pay you to keep clear of the habit, and, while I do not imagine that you are in danger of drinking too much, it is worth while something to have the reputation of letting liquor alone. Your employers will feel that it gives them a basis for that much more confidence in you, especially as they have had to discharge half a dozen bright young fellows within as many years because they could not keep straight. I want young people to say at the end of a year that they have at least one young man in their business who is invaluable to them, and who can be counted on to come up head whenever he is needed. How about salary? Well, just let that subject alone. You are getting more than you

THE COLUMBIAN.

C. E. Elwell, J. K. Bittenbender., } Editors.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1885.

Taxes must be paid thirty days before election. See to it at once.

The chairman of the Democratic county committee requests that each member of the committee shall appoint three or more active democrats as a vigiliance committee, and send the names at once to the chairman.

C. C. Evans Esq. is a gentleman of ability, and a lawyer with a promising future, but we advise him not to accept the republican nomination for district attorney, unless he wants to be snowed under by an avalanche of democratic votes.

A conference of the Democratic County Chairmen and State Committeemen of Carbon, Columbia, Schuylkill, Bradford, Wayne, Wyoming, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties was held at Mauch Chunk on Tuesday. Chairman Hensel and C. B. Day candidate for State Treasurer, were present besides many other prominent democrats. The plan of the campaign was discussed, and the reports from the several counties were encouraging. David Lowenberg, Geo. E. Elwell and William Bryson represented Columbia county.

Messrs. Hensel and Day are holding similiar conferences all over the State.

We are authorized by Robert Buckingham Esq. to say that the allegation of a bargain between him and Thomas Chalfant of Montour county concerning the senatorial nomination next year, is utterly false. He denies ever having a word of conversation with Mr. Chalfant on the subject of the senatorship. Mr. Chalfant favored the appointment of a Montour county man for deputy collector, from which it would appear that he did not want Mr. Buckingham appointed.

We are also informed that Mr. Chalfant is a candidate for the Danville post office, and if this be true, he would not be seeking the senatorship at the same time, a circumstance which would corroborate Mr. Buckingham's denial of the alleged bargain.

For some reason or other it takes about two years for the State reporter to prepare and print the opinions of the Supreme Court, so that when the State reports are ready they are two years behind time. The term of the present reporter, Mr. Outerbridge, will soon expire, and if the Governor has any desire to do a good thing for the people he will appoint some one as his successor who will perform the duties of the important office with much more promptness. There is no reason why the Supreme Court decisions should not be published within a very few months after they are handed down, and if the present state administration can effect a reform in this respect, it will be creditable to them and a great convenience to the legal fraternity, as well as benificial to the people generally by making known the law as soon as it is declared by the highest judicial tribunal of the state.

It is an old legal maxim that ignorance of the law is no excuse. Just now it would be a hardship to enforce this strictly so far as the laws passed at the last session of the legislature are concerned. It is more than three months since the legislature adjourned, and up to this time the lawyers and even the courts are ignorant of the laws of 1885. The pamphlet laws are still in the hands of the printer, and from present indications may remain there for some time longer.

This long delay is utterly inexcusable. When the pamphlet laws used to make a book of one thousand pages or more, they were printed and distributed in much less time than it takes the state printer to get out a book of two or three hundred pages now. If the state printer has not the facilities for doing the work of the state within a reasonable time, he ought to be removed, and let some one be appointed in his stead who can furnish copies of the laws with some degree of promptness.

FRANK P. BILLMEYER.

The democratic nominee for district attorney is a gentleman of education and ability. He prepared for college at the Normal school, and graduated at Lafayette College, Easton. After reading law in the office of E. R. Ikeler Esq. he was admitted to practice in 1875, and since that time he has followed his profession, and been engaged in business enterprises. For a number of years he has been the efficient secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Normal school, secretary of the Bloomsburg Water Company, and is now an officer of the School Furnishing Company. In politics he has been an active democrat, and has been elected Reading Clerk of the county convention year after year, because of his familiarity with the rules of the party and the system of computing delegate instructions. He has never been a candidate but once, when he ran for district attorney, and was defeated by R. R. Little Esq. Of course, he will be elected, and the business of his office will receive prompt and intelligent attention.

NO BOLT THIS YEAR.

The last vestige of journalism that remains in Berwick, a small sheet owned and published by a republican, but pretending to be democratic, contained an article last week on the subject of the district attorneyship. It suggested the possibility of the defeat of F. P. Billmeyer Esq. by the defection of the democrats of the Fishing creek section, because of the defeat of Cyrus B. McHenry for the office of deputy collector. The writer of the article is evidently unacquainted with the politics of the county. If he were not, he would know that the Columbia county democrats are in the habit of electing the nominees of the party by a large majority. He must have forgotten the result of the election one year ago when an attempted bolt resulted in the election of the candidate for Prothonotary by a majority 200 greater than that for the National ticket.

He is also unacquainted with the facts in the nomination of Mr. Billmeyer. When Mr. Buckingham was appointed deputy collector it was known that the law required him to resign the office of district attorney. Mr. Billmeyer at once secured the names of nearly every member of the bar to a petition asking the court to appoint him to fill the vacancy, and when this petition was presented, there being no other applicant before the court, he was unanimously appointed by the judges.

At the meeting of the Standing Committee Mr. Billmeyer was unanimously nominated, no other name being presented for its consideration. All this talk, therefore, about a "Machine" candidate is the merest bosh, and the charge that the court and the members of the Standing Committee are the tools of a "Machine" ought to be resented by every democrat in the county. But more than this, the writer of the article alluded to is entirely unacquainted with Mr. McHenry and his friends. Mr. McHenry is the peer of any man in Columbia county as a democrat, a man, and a citizen, and any one who suggests that his staunch adherence to the democratic party is to be affected by his failure to secure an appointment from the government, offers an insult to him, which we happen to know has aroused his just indignation It is not necessary for us to defend him against the insinuations of any newspaper article. His character and reputation are too well known to permit the belief for a moment that there is anything in this matter. We may perhaps add with propriety that as the paper containing this article is about on its last legs, and is liable to change hands soon, and as the article alluded to is purely sensational, it may be inferred that the writer only intended it as a means of calling attention to a journal that is, alas, so little known and read by the public. He may have succeeded in securing this result temporarily, but he has also succeeded in arousing the indignation of the solid Democracy of Columbia county. Mr. Billmeyer will receive the hearty and undivided support of Mr. McHenry and all his friends, and will be elected by the usual majority.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 23, 1885.

The appearance about Washington of the familiar faces of public men who, through modern pictorial art are known almost as well in the hamlets of this vast country as at the Capital itself, indicate the not remote approach of the fall political opening. The city is alert with preparation. Hotels and boarding houses, private residences and shops, streets and side-walks, are receiving the touches of renovation, and are having their youth and freshness renewed with such cosmetics as paint, white-wash, wall paper and paving-stones.

The most conspicuous improvement is that which has been made in the Capitol. Marble terraces have been built about the North and the West wings with the result of improving the symetrical effect of the building by reducing the disproportion of the dome.

Between forty and fifty workmen are now engaged in the work-sheds opposite the South side of the Capitol preparing the marble and granite blocks for the terraces. This work is being pushed along rapidly. The terrace work has been advanced so far as to enable one to see the beauty and value of the improvement. There are 150 men employed at the work. These include laborers, brick-layers and well-diggers. The latter are employed in sinking wells down some twenty-five feet below the present surface of the ground. These wells are filled up with concrete and stone masonry, and between the wells massive brick arches are constructed to support the walls. This method is adopted to save expense, time, and to secure a solid foundation. To excavate the entire foundation would be dangerous. The contractor feels assured that he can finish the North and South parts of the terrace before the close of the present building season. Preparations are now being made to lay the flagging of the North terrace, which also forms the roofs of the vaults. There will be twenty large rooms on the North side.

Some of them will be ready for occupation in about two weeks time. These rooms will relieve the interior part of the Capitol of a vast number of documents.

In the building itself much is being done to prepare for the coming congress. Some of the Committee rooms, particularly that of commerce, claims and library on the House side, and privileges and elections on the Senate, are being handsomely fitted up, and the ceilings and walls frescoed. The paintings, "The Battle of the Thames," and the "Capitulation of the City of Mexico," have been finished and will soon be placed in position in the rotunda. Such is the pressure for Committee rooms in the building that the document room had to be removed to an interior part, where there is but little ventilation, and the room surrendered to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The Secretary of State when conferring with this committee does so in secret. The clerks, therefore, to carry on their work are required to seek desk room in other places. The document room was seized upon to obviate this difficulty.

A large force of men are painting the interior of the dome. Preparations will soon be made to lay the carpets in the Senate and House chambers. The Supreme Court chamber has been painted, and the marble cleaned down. On all sides the busy workman is seen lending his hand to beautify the building before congress convenes.

The East front of the building has been holy-stoned to whiteness, all marks of the mellowing hand of time being obliterated by removing a thin layer of the surface of the marble in the wings, so as to correspond with the white painted surface of the old portion of the building.

The new Pension building has been almost completed and is already occupied by the Commissioner of Pensions and his vast army of assistants and clerks. The Pension Building is ugly in the extreme, and I think that it will be used as a warning, and end the brick era in National Architecture. For a building so vast, and so enduring, no worse design or material could have been adopted. It looks like a factory or a mammoth prison and it is so unfortunately situated as to be conspicuous from all parts of the city.

East Benton.

Our compliments to our friends Thanks, Mr. Benton. When I get out of the traces whip me in; but when I am pulled out of them, please help me in. Your paragraph has the ring of pure metal.

Right, Mr. Buckhorn. We rather would chance to swim out of deep still-water than to encounter a ferocious Buck-horn. I can not tell whether it were possible to "compromise" where there is no ground at all for dispute, unless I should yield the whole point. Come over, and see us Mr. Buckhorn, and satisfy yourself whether we be as good a man as represented.

We feel relieved, fresh and rested and in first rate trim for correspondence duty.

We are of the opinion that the columns of newspapers should all close against love stories, and make courting a more private matter.

Evidently some young people cut short much single blessedness on account of the dreadful cross, as Rev. G. V. Savage cut very short his interesting sermon last Sunday, and announced that the first of October was very near at hand.

The corn is ripening slowly but surely. Jack Frost will be in no hurry this fall.

Seeding is pretty generally dispensed with.

Quite a number of neighbors dined with neighbor Ashleman last Sunday.

Several persons from New York city have taken up a temporary abode at Cambra. They have friends living there.

All quiet along the lines, and peace and good will among the neighbors.

The Benton Fair is bound to be a mammoth affair this year. We hope that low tricksters and gamblers will be excluded.

Last Saturday a large number of persons passed here. The Fair Grounds are a very attractive place at present.

The new houses in course of erection last Summer at Cambra, are now all nearly completed.

Benton is, and is bound to remain the metropolis of the entire valley, lying between Nob and North Mountains. There is quite a number of enterprising men there, and a better lot of citizens could not well be found, though nearly all of them are Democrats.

Mrs. Judge Krickbaum drives semi-monthly to Hamlin Church, a distance of about a mile, and to St. James quite often, a distance of about four and a half miles.

Stillwater.

The farmers are busy seeding.

The crop of chestnuts, hickory-nuts and walnuts was never better in this vicinity.

Last Friday evening Elder Chamberlain of Philadelphia preached to a large and appreciative audience at the Christian Chapel, and on the following Lord's day, morning and evening, Elder Wm. Lane of Hartford, Conn. delivered able and masterly discourses to large audiences. Rich treat indeed.

Some vagrants who partake more of the propensities of hogs and thieves than they do of the qualities that go to make up the gentleman, have been marauding and robbing truck patches in the neighborhood; carrying off water melon &c. We sugggest Sam Lemons and his shot-gun as the most efficient remedy.

The COLUMBIAN is regarded in this community as the most useful and valuable paper published in Columbia county. The Senior Editor is a lawyer of ability, and the information furnished almost weekly on legal questions is worth sometimes in a single issue as much as the paper costs for the entire year.

There are a number of boys and young men who do not consider themselvet perfect specimens of humanity unless they can sport a big cigar in their mouths. They stand around the church vestibules, blowing tobacco smoke into the faces of church-goers; at a festival they will try to monopolize and occupy the benches about the ice cream tables, puffing smoke all over everything and everybody, to the intense disgust of all except the smokers.

Mr. Rolland Ikeler of Bloomsburg and Miss Jesse Fisher of Orangeville were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Woods on Sunday.

The wedding bells rang out joyously upon the quiet Sabbath air and bringing joy to the hearts of two young persons from this place, who entered the matrimonial engagement for life. They were Mr. Grant and Miss Kelchner. It appears that our young people are hurrying up this business as they do not wish to wait until after the 1st of October, when the new law goes into effect. Only a few more days, so hurry up, but be careful to make no rash promises.

A Dead Beat.

C. H. Brown has left Bloomsburg and, it is said, that he has gone to Lewistown to engage in business. He came to this place from Montrose over a year ago, and opened a laundry over Dentler's store, and stayed here as long as he could obtain credit. When this failed he was sold out by the Sheriff. He was apparently doing a paying business, and could have paid his bills if he wanted to, but as he is a professional dead beat it is not his plan to pay for anything he get by cheating or lying. He played the same game at Montrose, where he went by the name of Burt. We have a list of nearly twenty business men of this town whom he swindled out of various sums. If he is at Lewistown the people of that place had better look out for him.

This cheat should be passed along the line, and put out of any community he may curse with his presence, until he is taught that the best way to get a living is to earn it by honest labor. He will probably turn up under a new name, as Brown and Burt will no longer do for him. He is about 28 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and has a sandy mustache. Pass him along.

Berwick.

We should have said that Archy Averill hauls expressage and baggage from the Penna. depot free of charge.

What mild weather.

One of our venerable citizens, John Eggert died Wednesday, 16th inst., buried on Friday, 18th inst., p. m. He was a long while citizen of Berwick. A man of no mean literary attainments. He was sick for some months, was over 70. Another of our old land marks have disappeared. Who next? There is always room enough in the grave. Its avarice is as immortal as the race.

Now, that towns all along the river have postal delivery why should not Berwick? How comes that Berwick should be behind Nanticoke, Plymouth, Kingston, and all such places. This would give employment to an industrious boy.

The marble works of Kurtz is turning out some fine work.

Rev. E. Yocum's essay on the Missions of Mexico, Thursday evening 17th inst., in the M. E. church was very interesting.

Our race course at our fair grounds is well occupied daily with rapid steeds.

Our G. A. R. expect fine times at the unveiling at Hazleton. They have made every preparation to be there.

Tonsorial Heller has been away for some time visiting the races of the fairs.

We are glad to note that the times are commencing to look better. Business prospects are brightening. We trust they will grow brighter continually. Many families in Berwick will suffer the coming winter, if things remain as they have been. It will soon be proverbial that America is a hard country to live in if affairs don't change. We hope for better.

Our schools are completely filled.

The Berwick Water Works have declared dividends for the second time in their history of about 30 years. High time for dividends.

It is John Smethers who is so successful in fruit raising and truck. His name was mispelled last week.

The Y. M. C. A. literary society starts under favorable auspices; so with the other Literary Club.

A. J. Sult will run his fine steam yacht conveying passengers to and from our fair grounds, the fair commencing on Sept. 30th to continue four days. The yacht went to Oak Grove Saturday last, attending three days. This is an elegant little steamer calculated to hold 25 passengers. The rides up the canal are very pleasant and agreeable. Only 5 cts. a trip to the fair grounds.

Billy Clemens will go into the oyster business upon the fair grounds. He is preparing largely to accommodate the public. He is an old caterer.

Hockman has chartered the dining buildings at the fair grounds where all will be furnished good square meals at reasonable prices.

The Redrock Sunday School held their picnic in Learn's woods, not Legru's, near Stephen Thomas' residence. A mistake of type.

We challenge any one to point out a prettier view of the Susquehanna than to be found above the Berwick bridge or a more beautiful glen than to be found in rear of Foundryville.

You ought to see those new boots built by Drum at Newtown. They are first-class.

Mrs. Rambach starting away from Berwick last Saturday morning came near having a runaway. She was on her way to the picnic of the Presbyterian Sunday school held in Williams' grove below Nescopeck. Nothing worse happened than the spilling of the eatables she had with her in the buggy. The picnic was a success.

The G. A. R. held their encampment at Mifflin on Saturday last. It was a success.

Those nobby suits that Hertz is framing up for our boys are just the thing. Go look at them.

Mrs. Ellis Walton and daughter Mrs. Devores of Plymouth have been the guests of Wm. Girton; also Mrs. Clinetob and daughter of Hazleton.

Mrs. Rarich of Butler township is also visiting at the residence of Wm. Girton.

G. W. Hossler is engaged in the buggy business at Foundryville. He has been at it for the last year, and is constantly increasing in his line of business. He furnished one of the finest buggies we have ever seen to Wm. Adams of Butler not long since.

Mrs. Walton and daughter and Mrs. Devores, also Joseph Hosler and wife of Plymouth, have been visiting friends here and attending the funeral of wife of Gideon Hosler on Sabbath last. Mrs. Klinetob and daughter of Hazleton, Mrs. Simon Rarich of Butler was also in attendance at the funeral, and visiting friends. The funeral was largely attended, one of the largest that has occurred for years in this section.

We are happy to notice that Walter E. Harter, formerly identified with Patterson in the butchering business for himself in the meat line at Shickshinny was wedlocked to one of Shickshinny's fairest daughters on Thursday night, last. We wish Walter abundant success in his matrimonial life. May poverty never strike him and always think his wife is the best folks in existence. Long may they wave.

The probationers of the M. E. church will be taken into full membership on Sunday morning Oct. fourth.

Benton.

An exciting game of ball was played last Saturday on the Fair grounds, between the "Modocs" of Cambra and Bentons, the latter winning by a score of 21 to 16. This is the second time that the Bentons have played this season, consequently they did not work together very well. There were no particularly brilliant plays on either side and it would take a great deal of space to enumerate the errors. The umpire, Dr. Davidson, furnished by the visiting team, gave, with few exceptions, satisfaction, and the "kicking" was chiefly by his nine. The return game is to be played on Cambra grounds Saturday next.

J. J. McHenry, Rob Boyer and Rev. Savidge left Monday afternoon for Shickshinny, where they purpose spending a few days, bass fishing. We may expect lots of bass.

Everything is bustle and excitement around the new hotel. Boyd, the new landlord, is busily engaged in making every preparation for the grand opening Thursday evening. Good music will be furnished and all lovers of dancing will have an ample opportunity afforded for a "giddy" time.

The Benton correspondent to the News-Dealer last week remarked that now would be a good time to tackle the Benton base ball club as the fingers of the players were sadly demoralized. We wonder if the visiting club of last Saturday embraced this opportunity. Well, they were slightly (to the tune of 21 to 16) left.

Great was the surprise when it was learned that our worthy and efficient postmaster, John Heacock, was to be succeeded by Miss Ella Appleman. We trust his sucessor will meet with the success and approval of the citizens as he while serving his term.

Ira McHenry and Strat Gearhart, who have been engaged at work upon the hotel, left Monday for Cambra to complete the work began some time ago upon Alf. McHenry's new house.

Mrs. R. A. Carman, our busy milliner, has added greatly to the appearance of her property by laying a walk. Keep the ball rolling, worthy neighbors, and then it will no more be unsafe for a stranger to walk the streets of Benton after night without a guide.

A new postoffice is to be erected.

The members of the Christian church contemplate putting a bell on their "Chapel on the hill." We wonder what excuse will be resorted to now for tardiness at Sunday school.

If you want good buckwheat cakes always go to "Billy" Patterson. He is not to be surpassed in either buckwheat or wheat flour. Housekeepers need not growl over their bread or cakes if they use his flour.

One of our farmers has several acres of ground plowed for corn to be planted in 1886. Who is ahead of this?

We here give a list of our people who have been married in the past two weeks and come in one round ahead of that dreadful law of license: Michael Knittle, Mrs. J. Knittle, H. J. Gearhart, Alice Hetler, John Nuss, John Kelchner, Dan. Huttenstine. Other weddings are rumored. Peace and good will to all of them.

Mrs. Wm. Kunkel, of Franklin township, died suddenly on the 14th inst. Her remains were buried in the Mifflinville cemetery, Rev. Hassinger officiating.

Wanamaker's.

PHILADELPHIA, September 21, 1885.

Did you ever see a "fashion article" about trimmings for dresses and coats that gave you any help in picking out your fringes and buttons and braids? We'll try. We shall not grab the first handful of stuff we come to and go into ectacies over it, as if that were the fashion; nor pick out what we want most to get rid of and make a fashion of that.

We recognize the fact that it is a difficult thing to do to tell you what thousands of things are good and what other thousands are not. You want the good. Can we help you at all? Imagine our buyer going from city to city in Europe looking for novelties. What has he brought? At home again, he is besought by every other importer to see his gatherings. American makers too are after him. What is the fashion? What has he got from them all?

Black chenille fringes, etc.: Single and double ball; leech; looped; mallet; pinched; rat-tail; leech and rat-tail mixed; leech with Milan drops; leech with rosary beads; leech with cut beads; tape thistle; balls and beads; loops and beads; tassels; marabouts. These for mourning: plain and fluted tapes, single, double and treble; mixed tapes; tape and grass marabout and moss; crimped-silk moss. Braid and ribbon fringes and marabouts.

Colored fringes and marabouts of braid, tape and chenille. Moss trimmings of worsted and silk to match everything plain and mixed in dress-stuffs.

Black passementeries: With and without beads; drop galloons; ornament gimps; mohair gimps; all-bead fringes straight and pointed in cut and pressed beads; pendant drop fringes; beaded nets, grenadines and laces; crochet gimps. Colored passementeries of braids and cords, narrow and wide—the widest 31-inch, for dress-fronts and panels.

Braided balls, black and colors.

Feather trimmings, American and foreign — American are much the richer and finer; the foreign excel in the lower grades and in extreme combinations.

Braids: Black, white and colors—plain colors and mixed; cotton, worsted, mohair, silk, tinsel and mixed; shaped braid trimming.

This by no means exhausts the trimming resources; but most of the materials are here grouped together. The names alone convey a better notion of what is going to be worn than we could otherwise put in words, however many we might use. The difficulty is in the endless variety of forms the various trimmings take. It isn't possible to touch them. You wouldn't read a hundredth part.

Of buttons another day.

Everybody knows that Faille Francaise is crowding hard upon gros-grain silk—has crowded it out of favor in strictly fashionable dress. On the whole, though, we shall sell more gros-grain than of heavier cord in spite of fashion. There's no difference but the size of the cord and the lustre.

We have the new silk from Guinet at $1.75 and $2. We divide the colors. Those that ninety-nine in a hundred will buy are at $1.75; a few rare colors that very few buyers will care for, $2.

Black cotton-back velvets of more than market fulness for $2 to $3.75; but we shall have to keep those above $2.50 till the all-silk velvet at $4 is out of the way. Those at $2 and $4 are supposed to be the cheapest—velvets are hard to measure accurately.

1209 Chestnut.

Black spun-silk hose with stout Balbriggan soles $1. We had nearly as good last year—can get them only now and then.

1315 Chestnut, ninth counter.

1319 and 21 Chestnut. Enter from Arcade by umbrellas and hosiery.

It is a mystery to us why we don't sell three-quarters of all the shoes you wear. We don't. We could sell five times as many. We should want more room; but there's room enough to be got—we make it by building straight up in the air where land is cheap.

When we think of shoes alone it seems that we ought to sell five times as many. There are two million people, big and little, within what we think of as our local trading circuit. They must wear as many as five-million pairs of shoes a year. But they who buy the worst shoes buy the most; and we don't sell them any—thousands of poor people and thousands not poor but mistaken people.

There's the difficulty. Half the people think they save money by buying poor shoes. We must teach them better. We keep the poorest shoes anybody ought to buy. We give them the benefit of the doubt. We rarely speak of them. We sell as few as we can. We'd rather sell the shoes you ought to wear.

after so much labor and capital has been expended to build up this medicine, to allow it to deteriorate. You can take Simmons Liver Regulator with perfect faith, as it is made by no adventurers who pick up the business of concocting medicines, but by educated, practical druggists who have made the study of medicine and its compounds the labor of a lifetime. The care, precision, neatness and perfection exhibited by the very appearance of the Regulator proves it to be the best prepared medicine in the market, and J. H. Zeilin & Co. fully carry out their motto: "Purissima et Optima (purest and best.)

Stop using quinine. It is injurious to the system and does not cure. Keller's Catarrh Remedy is a safe and positive cure for Malaria; one bottle is generally sufficient. Catarrh and all blood diseases speedily cured.

Can you tell me who is in the greatest danger of catching any infectious or epidemic disease? "Why," you say, "the persons whose blood is in an impure or impoverished condition." Exactly. Such people take special complaints as dry grass bursts into flame before the sparks of a locomotive. Pure blood is a defence; it means safety, and Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the mildest, safest and surest purifier of the blood. Our chief dangers are within ourselves. Sept 18-4w

There are more Diseases than there are visible stars, but there is one remedy that goes to their common source in secretions and the blood. That is Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters, a prompt and perfect remedy for all diseases of the blood. It gives new vitality to the secreting and excreting organs, and fills the arterics with new material for strength.

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

Who does not delight to see a good looking face? Yet erysipelas disfigures the features almost beyond recognition. But that is not the worst of it. The disease is as dangerous as it is repulsive. It is sometimes called "St. Anthony's Fire," and often causes sudden death. Mr. S. B. Carpenter, of Grandville, N. Y., had it in both legs and was cured by Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. This medicine excels all others for the blood. Especially adapted to persons in feeble health.

Jumbo Killed.

STRUCK BY AN ENGINE IN ONTARIO.

ST. THOMAS, ONT., September 16. The Barnum, Bailey & Hutchinson arrived here from Chatham yesterday morning and unloaded near where their tents were pitched, a short distance east of Mellor street. While the evening performance was in progress the usual plan of loading the animals was proceeded with. There are thirty-one elephants in connection with the show and of these all had been placed on board of the cars with the exception of the famous Jumbo and Tom Thumb, the dwarf clown elephant, who created so much merriment during the performance. As these two were walked along the track to reach their cars, about half past nine o'clock, a special freight, run by Engineer William Burnip, approached from the east. The engineer noticed the elephants on the track and whistled for brakes three times and reversed his engine. But just at that point the track was on a down grade and the train could not be stopped. Jumbo was ahead in charge of his keeper, Mr. Scott, known to all the circus people as "Scotty," with Tom Thumb in the rear.

When "Scotty" noticed the danger he urged Jumbo to increase his pace and the big animal started on a run down the track, with his keeper bravely running by his side. But it was no use. The train could not be held back and as it came thundering along it first struck the clown elephant and threw him into the ditch and then dashed into Jumbo. As it struck the monster it was as if two trains had come together. The freight was stopped and the engine and two cars were thrown from the track. Jumbo was struck in the hind legs and as the cow-catcher hit him he gave vent to one loud roar and fell. The engine and edge of the first car passed along his back and inflicted terrible bruises. Jumbo was not instantly killed, but lived for fifteen minutes after being struck, expiring while efforts were being made to take him from under the train. The engine was badly damaged and will have to be sent to the shop and be rebuilt.

DYING ON THE TRACK.

Almost as soon as the accident had occurred men were set to work to get the engine and cars on the track and to pull poor Jumbo from the wreck. Large cables were attached to him, one to the front and another to the back part of his body, and about one hundred men buckled on to each cable, while another force of men with planks and crowbars pried from behind. After about half an hour's labor Jumbo's body was pulled off the track into the ditch. The circus employes ran about with flaming torches, the cool head master of the transportation gave orders to the hundreds of men at work, while to one side stood Mr. Hutchinson and other managers of the show, grieving over the loss of their favorite. The scene was one not soon to be forgotten. While Jumbo was being pulled off the track the veterinary surgeons connected with the show were attending to the elephant Tom Thumb. He had been thrown into the ditch and it was found that his left hind leg had been broken. It is expected that the leg can be saved, and after his limb was set he was lifted in the car and taken with the rest of the animals on the train which left for London this morning.

After the accident, when the noise and confusion had somewhat ceased so that an examination could be made of Jumbo, it was apparent that death was upon him. There were deep flashes in his flank, his feet were torn and the blood ran out of his mouth. He gave one groan after being struck, then he suffered in silence while the sands of his life ran out. Long after life was extinct his keeper, who brought him from the Zoological Gardens in London, lay on his body and wept.

Mr. Barnum was at the Murray Hill hotel in New York, and received four telegrams announcing Jumbo's death.

"All Europe was waiting to see Jumbo," said he, "but his sudden death precludes our going abroad next season, as we intended. It's no use going to Europe without Jumbo, so we'll travel all over the United States with Jumbo's skin stuffed and his skeleton."

"Jumbo has been exhibited to thousands of children in this country and many more in England. He was undoubtedly the largest beast on the face of the earth. He stood 11½ feet high, and weighed seven tons. His bulk was such that a front view of him was almost as wonderful as a side view. The other elephants of other circuses seemed like pigmies beside him. His trunk for several feet after leaving his head was as thick as a stout man's body. When he lifted his head and stretched his trunk upward he could reach up twenty-six feet, or five feet higher than the largest of the other elephants in my herd. He was 26 years old. His loss is indeed great.

"In infancy Jumbo was captured by a band of Arabs in Africa. He was brought across deserts on the back of two camels lashed together, and was fed on camel's milk. At a tender age he was sold to the Jardin des Plantes in Paris. While still a little fellow the Royal Zoological Gardens, Regent's Park, London, came into possession of him by swapping other animals. He was not considered a wonderful elephant then, but when seven or eight years old he began to grow fast. The story is that people came to see him get bigger while they watched him. As he attained his growth he was used to carrying loads of children upon his back about the gardens, and when so engaged was perfectly tractable. As he grew older, however, he showed an unruly disposition, and was put under close confinement. The council of the Zoological Society became afraid that he would sacrifice life, and decided to sell him. I immediately opened negotiations for his purchase. That was in the early part of 1882. For seventeen years the English children had petted him, and it was hard for them to part with the big fellow. But I offered $10,000, and was told the animal was mine. But, when it became known that he was sold, nearly all England protested against it. Great indignation was expressed by the London press, and the subject of Jumbo soon became a craze. His removal from the country was lamented as a national calamity. The council defended themselves by saying that they were afraid Jumbo would become possessed of the peculiar insanity to which elephants at certain stages of life are subject."

"What about the story that the Prince of Wales was loath to have Jumbo leave England?

"It was true," said Mr. Barnum, "the Prince of Wales went to the Zoological Gardens and tried to stop the sale. Queen Victoria herself interposed. London was on end with excitement. My agent telegraphed me in America that Jumbo could not be got out of the Gardens; that he persisted in lying down, and would not get up. I cabled back, 'Let Jumbo lie.' It was the best advertisement for me I ever had. I was willing to have Jumbo enjoy his sudden ease for a month. Both England and the United States were talking about me and Jumbo. An injunction suit in Chancery was commenced, and while the matter was before the House of Commons $20,000 was earned by the council in exhibiting Jumbo a few weeks.

Jumbo's provender was sent to New York on two separate ships before we got him out of the Zoological Gardens. Popular feeling ran so high in England that there were rumors that a riot would take place when Jumbo was conveyed out of the Zoological Gardens. John Ruskin wrote: 'England is not in the habit of parting with her pets If stone walls and chains are necessary to confine Jumbo, England has the stone and iron, and need not go to America for them.' Minister James Russell Lowell announced in a public speech that he believed the relations between England and America were undisturbed except in connection with Jumbo.

"To get him to the Monarch line pier we built a huge crate on wheels and had him put into it. The crate was drawn by a cavalcade of horses. He could have walked, of course, but the Royal Humane Society threatened to imprison us if we stuck a prod in him. There was not room for Jumbo between the decks of the steamship Assyrian Monarch, and he had to be kept on the deck for several days. Parliament became interested in the matter, and passed a special act providing for precautions against life by emigrants who accompanied Jumbo to America.

We had to cut a hole in the upper deck in order to let Jumbo's head through. In this way, chained in a huge crate, he was brought to America. The Assyrian Monarch arrived here on Sunday morning, Apr. 9, 1882, after a voyage of fourteen days, and Jumbo was landed in good condition. The elephant and the immense iron-bound box in which he was caged weighed together twelve and a half tons. The box and its freight were hoisted from the steamship by a floating derrick, which was towed to Pier 1. Jumbo was then hauled by sixteen horses to Madison Square Garden. Jumbo cost me including the price I paid to bring him to American, $30,000. He paid for himself in three weeks. I valued Jumbo at the time of his death at $300,000

"Was Jumbo insured?"

"He was not," said Mr. Barnum. "I don't insure my animals when they are travelling, because if they meet any accident on the railroad, I hold the company that is transporting them liable. When they are in winter quarters at Bridgeport, I have them insured, I held $75,000 in policies on my animals last year."

"What was Jumbo's food?"

"Four hundred pounds of hay, one barrel of potatoes, and one bushel of onions daily. It cost me $30 a day to feed him. He drank water and beer. Jumbo was never unmanageable while he was in my circus. Scott, his English keeper, who had been with him since he was 3 years old, ruled him by kindness. He never used a prod on Jumbo. He taught him nothing except to cary children on his back. This Jumbo has been accustomed to do for years, and no youngsters were in danger while riding on his back around the ring. While travelling throughout the country we transported Jumbo in a special car just large enough to go through tunnels. Scott slept in it with Jumbo. Scott is a great beer drinker, and Jumbo used to share a pailful of the beverage with his keeper every night."

Only Temperance Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectually purges the blood of deep-seated disease.

Millions bear testimony to its wonderful curative effects.

It is a purely Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herbs and roots of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

It removes the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health.

It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to.

The Alterative, Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Anti-Bilious, Solvent, Diuretic and Tonic properties of VINEGAR BITTERS exceed those of any other medicine in the world.

No person can take the BITTERS according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Millions, Remittent, Intermittent and Malarial Fevers are prevalent throughout the United States, particularly in the valleys of our great rivers and their vast tributaries during the Summer and Autumn, especially during seasons of unusual heat and dryness.

These Fevers are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these organs, is absolutely necessary.

There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as it will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forewarned.

It invigorates the Stomach and stimulates the torpid Liver and Bowels, cleansing the blood of all impurities, imparting life and vigor to the frame, and carrying off without the aid of Calomel, or other mineral, all poisonous matter from the system. It is easy of administration, prompt in action, and certain in its results.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Pneumonia, Dizziness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are at once relieved by VINEGAR BITTERS.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, the Bitters have no equal. In these, as in all constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS has shown its great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Typesetters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to Paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take occasional doses of VINEGAR BITTERS.

Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Swellings, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations, Humors and diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of the Bitters.

Pin, Tape and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like VINEGAR BITTERS.

Diseases, Scarlet Fever, Rumps, Whooping Cough, and all children's diseases may be made less severe by keeping the bowels open with mild doses of the Bitters. This wonderful remedy is especially adapted to the systems of children, for purifying herbs alone give it its remarkable curative powers. It contains no alcohol, opium or other poison.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, this Bitters has no equal.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when its impurities burst through the skin in Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when, and the health of the system will follow.

In conclusion: Give the Bitters a trial. It will speak for itself. One bottle is a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Around each bottle are full directions printed in different languages.

TO GRATIFY HIS WIFE.

A GOOD REASON FOR HAPPINESS.

"For many years I had suffered from a complaint which the physicians call gravel. I had employed some of the most noted doctors without obtaining any permanent relief, and for a long time my case was regarded as hopeless. All who knew my circumstances said I must die. Finally my wife induced me to try a bottle of Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy,' which she had somewhere heard of or seen advertised. Without the slightest faith in it, but solely to gratify her, I bought a bottle of a druggist in our village. I used that and two or three bottles more, and—to make a long story short—I am now as healthy a man as there is in the country.

"Since then I have recommended 'Favorite Remedy' to others whom I knew to have suffered from kidney and liver complaints; and I assure the public that the 'Favorite Remedy' has done its work with a similar completeness in every single instance, and I trust some other sick and discouraged mortal may hear of it and try the 'Favorite Remedy,' as I did."—Washington Monroe, Catskill, N. Y.

DON'T LET A FOOLISH PREJUDICE against popular medicines stand between you and the health of your wife, child or baby. It is always right to advertise a blessing. Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy" is a blessing. It has saved thousands and it will help you. If you are sick from troubles of the kidneys, bowels, liver and blood, spend one dollar for this king of medicines.

STREET FLIRTING.—Whatever idea the young girls who practice street flirting may entertain of their seemingly innocent pastime, it may be set down as a certainty that when a respectable young man desires the acquaintance of one who may some day become his wife, he does not go out on the street and seek their acquaintance through a flirtation. But, on the other hand, the flirt of the street, no matter how innocent and fair her intentions may be, is the last person he would select as his life's companion. He desires purity above suspicion. The young girl who engages in this kind of pastime should bear in mind that she not only endangers her reputation and leaves a stain on her name, but that her name is a by-word among those with whom she flirts, to be bandied about in the saloons, on the street corners and in the low-down, unholy places in the town, fastening on her otherwise fair name a stigma or stain that will follow her years after she sees her folly and attempts to mend her ways.

Coming Fashions for Men.

The new tall silk hat will be higher and straighter in the crown than its spring forerunner, with a narrow brim, having a flat curve, technically called a "D'Orsay roll." Derbies will be high, with rounder crowns and less brim than formerly, and color, black will be more worn than brown, which is the only other permissable shade. The tailors have not much to trouble them, as the styles of men's clothes have not been altered to any great degree. Four-button cutaways and one-button cutaways will be chiefly worn, the neck opening being cut a trifle lower than formerly. Trousers are steadily but gradually on the increase in width, and are cut straight instead of being shaped to the calf. Overcoats will be single-breasted Chesterfields, in cassimeres and diagonals. No new materials seem to have been introduced. Checks will still hold their place, while a broad, widespaced diagonal seems likely to be fashionable. In neckwear the folded scarf has been largely replaced by the simple sailor's knot.

Cure for Felon.

A doctor in the Phrenological Journal says that he has tried this cure for felon in many cases and has never known it to fail: "Take common salt, roasted on a hot stove until all the chlorine of gas is thrown off or it is as dry as you can make it. To a teaspoonful, and also a teaspoonful of pulverized Castile soap, add a teaspoonful of Venice turpentine; mix them well into a poultice and apply to the felon. If you have ten felons at once make as many poultices. Renew this poultice twice a day. In four or five days your felon will, if not opened before your poultice is first put on, present a hole down to the bone, where the pent up matter was before your poultice brought it out. If the felon has been cup open or opened itself, or is about to take off the finger to the first joint, no matter, put on your poultice; it will stop right there, and in time your finger will get well even if one of the first bones is gone. Of course it will not restore the lost bone, but it will get well soon.
